Field Trip

November 9, 2011, Wednesday 10:00-18:00 (Old and New Landscapes in Central Seoul: Gyeongbokgung–Samcheongdong–Insadong)

Gyeongbokgung was the first royal palace built by the Joseon Dynasty three years after the Joseon Dynasty was founded. Built in 1395, Gyeongbokgung was located at the heart of the newly appointed capital of Seoul (then known as Hanyang) and represented the sovereignty of the Joseon Dynasty. The largest of the Five Grand Palaces (the others being Gyeonghuigung, Deoksugung, Changgyeonggung, Changdeokgung), Gyeongbokgung served as the main palace of the Joseon Dynasty.

Samcheong-dong is also famous for its high-class style, where you can find designer shops and exotic galleries that fill the neighborhood with an artistic flavor. You'll also find elegant restaurants and cafes here that shouldn't be missed.

The streets of Insadong are alive with traditional culture. The area that is now known as Insadong has been the center of culture since the Joseon era. Over the years a wider variety of arts have continued to move their way into this neighborhood, making it one of the best places in the world to find diverse genres of art. In 1997, car traffic was banned on the main street of Insadong, making it friendlier for visitors and improving the overall general atmosphere.
